THE HELENA SCHMIDT GENEALOGY

1862 to 1959

The
HELENA SCHMIDT
and
JOHN J. KLIEWER

Before attempting to read this genealogy, it is suggested that you read carefully the following instructions. This genealogy is arranged in four indexes, each serving a special purpose: 1. The Numerical Index; 2. The Alphabetical Index; 3. The Geographical Index; and, 4. The Birthday Index.

GENEALOGY

1. The Numerical Index.—1862 to 1959 Each individual receives a number. The number of digits in the number indicates in which generation since the original ancestor that individual appears. If a person's number has three digits, that person is in the 3d generation; if five digits, that person is in the 5th generation since the first ancestor—Helena Schmidt, counting her as being in the first generation. She was the fourth child of her parents; her number is 4. Her first child is 41; her second, 42, signifying the 2d child of the 1st ancestor, who was the 4th child in her family. The 10th child of the 1st ancestor would be 49, but the 11th would be 41A; the 12th, 1B; the 13th, 1C, etc. An adopted child has its own individual digit underscored; note, as an example, No. 49, also Nos. 4A and 4B, these two being treated as the 11th and 12th children in that family (although adopted). This does not necessarily mean legal adoption, but merely acquisition through a foster home or through marriage, as the children of Clara Field, who were acquired through marriage by Myron Kiewer (No. 414). If a person goes by a name other than his first given name, the name he goes by is underscored; see, as examples, Nos. 42, 413, 433, 483, and 493. The Numerical Index also shows a person's descendants (his family); thus, No. 4 had nine children (Nos. 41 to 49). Running down the numerical column 49 is the list of descendants (Nos. 491 and 492); and their descendants may be traced in the same manner. Relationships between numbers can be seen at a glance, merely by comparing the numbers; Nos. 411 and 412 are seen to be brothers—thus: in the 2d generation their ancestors were brothers (or brother and sister); hence in the 3d generation they were sons of the same couple; in the 4th generation, they were second cousins.

Nicknames, or names of endearment, are in parentheses and quotation marks, thus, ("Nonnie") Kiewer, but Kiewer. Abbreviations used are: b. born; d. died; m. married; m(1) first marriage; m.(2) second marriage, etc. Dates and children born of a marriage are listed with the person in the bloodstream, but not under the person marrying in; other biographical data, however, are given for the in-law. There is given, if known: birth date, death date, marriage date, whether 1st or 2d marriage, by whom married, children in order of birth, biographical data, and present address.

Instructions

Before attempting to read this genealogy, it is suggested that you read carefully the following instructions. This genealogy is arranged in four indexes, each serving a special purpose: 1. The Numerical Index; 2. The Alphabetical Index; 3. The Geographical Index; and, 4. The Birthday Index.

1. The Numerical Index.--Each individual receives a number. The number of digits in the number indicates in which generation since the original ancestor that individual appears. If a person's number has three digits, that person is in the 3d generation; if five digits, that person is in the 5th generation since the first ancestor--Helena Schmidt, counting her as being in the first generation. She was the fourth child of her parents; her number is 4. Her first child is 41; her second, 42, signifying the 2d child of the 1st ancestor, who was the 4th child in her family. The 10th child of the 1st ancestor would be 10, but the 11th would be 1A; the 12th, 1B; the 13th, 1C, etc. An adopted child has its own individual digit underscored; note, as an example, No. 40, also Nos. 4A and 4B (these two being treated as the 11th and 12th children in that family, although adopted). This does not necessarily mean legal adoption, but merely acquisition through a foster home or through marriage, as the children of Clara Field, who were acquired through marriage by Myron Kliwer (No. 414). If a person goes by a name other than his first given name, the name he goes by is underscored; see, as examples, Nos. 42, 413, 433, 483, and 472 1. The Numerical Index also shows a person's descendants (his family); thus, No. 4 had nine children (Nos. 41 to 49). Running down the numerical series 49 is seen to have two descendants (Nos. 491 and 492); and their descendants may be traced in the same manner. Relationships between numbers can be seen at a glance, merely by comparing the numbers: Nos. 411 1 and 472 5 are seen to be second cousins--thus: in the 2d generation their ancestors were brothers (or brother and sister); hence in the 3d generation they were cousins; hence, in the 4th generation, they were second cousins.

2. The Alphabetical Index.--This lists every name, including those who married into the bloodstream--the in-laws. Names are arranged by surnames, then by given names. Nicknames, or terms of endearment, are in parentheses and quotation marks, thus, ("Nonnie") Kliwer, but whose true name is Marianna Kliwer. Abbreviations used are: b. born; d. died; m. married; m(1) first marriage; m.(2) second marriage, etc. Dates and children born of a marriage are listed with the person in the bloodstream, but not under the person marrying in; other biographical data, however, are given for the in-law. There is given, if known: birth date, death date, marriage date, whether 1st or 2d marriage, to whom married, children in order of birth, biographical data, and present address.

3. The Geographical Index.--This shows the states and cities in which persons in this genealogy live--whether in the direct line of descent or in-laws or adopted. The purpose of this index is to facilitate spotting relatives in a given area; it should be helpful in planning trips or making contacts in a given area by mail. Lists heads of households only; or children only if living separately.

4. The Birthday Index.--This shows by months and within the month in date order the birthdays of living persons in this genealogy, whether in direct line of descent, in-laws, or adopted. Names of SPECIAL SIGNIFICANCE TO YOU may be marked with red pencil or with some other distinctive mark.

This genealogy is made up from material secured through many sources. Much of the information came from a manuscript, OUR FAMILY RECORD, written originally by Esther Helena Kliwer (No. 48), in 1921, to which, from time to time she added information. Some came from letters, and some of it is merely as the editors, Esther and Bennie Bargen, remember it. However, efforts were made to secure accurate information from everyone, but absolute accuracy is not guaranteed. Your reactions, criticism, suggestions, corrections, and especially more adequate biographical data will be appreciated. Such material can be included in future editions as they appear feasible.--The editor: Bernhard ("Bennie") Bargen, Box 157, North Newton, Kansas. Corrected to date October 15, 1959, before publication.

Schmidt, Helena (No. 4). b. 02 10 1862; d. 03 30 1934; m. 08 14 1885 to Johann ("John") J. Kliewer, b. 07 21 1859; d. 03 16 1937. (Children: Herman Schmidt, Johannes Marcus, Peter Schmidt, Otto, Menno, Walter, Marianna, Esther Helena, Dora Katharina.) (Adopted: Anna Washburn, Henry and Theodore Warnke, these last two being nephews.) Helena was the fourth child of her parents. Born in Alexanderwohl, Russia. In 1874 she came to America with her parents . . . on the ship "Zymbria." Her Father was Henry A. Schmidt, b. 1828; her mother, Anna Unruh, b. 1837. They had eleven children. . . . Their eleventh child, David, was born in America. Helena's grandfather on her mother's side was Peter Schmidt. She had a strong sense of mission, as indicated by the fact that for a whole year before her marriage she was at the Darlington (Oklahoma) mission station. With Grandpa Kliewer, after their marriage, they were workers on the field 1885-1897 among the Arapahoe and Cheyenne Indians. They lived at Shelly and Gotebo, Oklahoma, until 1911; thence to Carlsbad, N. M., where a settlement venture failed, due to the breaking of a Government dam. Thence, 1912, to Reedley, California, and in 1919 to Burrton, Kansas; in 1927, to Newport, Washington. There they lived in a log-cabin-type home, in uncleared land, where once more she was a minister's wife. She had deep-blue (almost violet) eyes; it must have been striking, because when she was young she would be told (in Low German), when attempting to contribute to some conversation: "You be quiet; you have deep eyes." As a rule she was very quiet, but an outgoing person; very little education--yet learned to write and to read some. Very gifted in horticulture, herbs, and home-made medicines. She carried responsibilities well: the whole burden of the move to New Mexico rested heavily on her, because a group of families all ate in common--four or five tables, and she had the major responsibility (as the leader's wife), and in view of the fact that her family occupied the main building and the main farm. She died of a stroke at Newport, Washington; in a simple coffin, she was buried in a sandy grave, near the church. She died on a Good Friday, 5:30 p.m., after a sickness of two days.
